AMERICA CAN STAND ALONE

We say again that there never was a minute when we were in any danger at all from any attack Germany might mediate, except the vast effort and terrible cost of having to beat off such an attack, and no German high command, in its wildest dreams, ever thought that it could subjugate America. The Allies made no sacrifices for America. Not a sacrifice. The Allies were entirely too busy trying to hold Germany back to think any populations. The common sense of Americans refuses longer to be confused by the injection of a fictitious religious character into what is purely a fight for national rights such as we were to war to vindicate. In the Westchester States I was frequently invited to state Ireland's cause from Protestant pulpits. But it was in New Hampshire that I found the most remarkable evidences of American opinion on the Irish question transcending sectarian lines. Speaking recently at Portsmouth, Dover, Manchester and Concord, I had ministers of several denominations in every meet-

THE VENAL PRESS ASSISTS

Some of our people have been telling us of late to be "constructive" in our efforts at social reform. They do not want us to criticize. They do not want us to be "calamity howlers." They do not even want us to resent unjust attacks upon our most precious liberties. They want us simply to swim with the current of popular opinion and meekly to approve of every measure that those in power see fit to propose. Now sometimes the way for constructive work must be prepared by a little hewing away and demolition. Debris must be carted away before the foundations of the new temple can be laid. And so it is in social reform. We must root out evils before we can erect the temple of social justice.

We must do a little such preliminary work today by pointing out a crying evil which exists in a neighboring country and which is closing the path to the attainment of solid social reform. Fortunately the terrible abuse does not yet exist to the same extent in our country. But are we not allowed to learn from sad conditions in other lands, in order to be better prepared to solve our own calamities from our own people?

Bishop Pinol y Batres had been directed by the Holy See to preach a series of sermons in the archdiocese of Guatemala. Large audiences were present at the conferences. These were some of the subjects of the abuse: the corruption not only of religious but also of social interest; The prevailing sins of modern society; the corrupt administration of justice; the growth of concubinage; the general looseness of morals of students in colleges and public schools; unjust contraband of goods in the hands of a few persons; the unquestioning submission demanded of subjects in matters which are illicit; the misuse of public moneys; the harsh treatment of native laborers; official sanction of "graft" on the part of public officials; failure of officials to give account of funds entrusted to them for the common welfare.

Topics of this kind are discussed every day in our leading papers and the editor is regarded as the "apostle of righteousness" for doing so. But in Guatemala the press is terrorized. No paper dares to speak the truth. In speaking up, we must master the bishop's reply, whereas we can make a personal attack upon a man. He said what many wished to say and should have said, but he was unsaid for fear of the consequences. The Bishop did not even speak of these questions from the pulpit, but only from the moral viewpoint. The lectures were given from Managua.

During the night of May 16, at 8:30 in the morning, a band of ruffians broke into the Bishop home, came up to his bedroom, and without any warrant arrested him. He was taken away like a criminal to Esquintla and held "incom-municado" by the police. On the 17th he was taken to the capital. On the evening of the 18th he underwent a preliminary hearing on the subject of the sermons he had delivered. He was accused of having uttered "subversive words," of having excited the people against the constituted authority, of having made direct, particular and personal allusions against them, and of having directed a conspiracy against the Government. Seeing that the Bishop was in the hands of the ruling powers, the cowardly papers curried favor with the Government by heaping calumnies upon him. The official and the anti-Catholic press accused the prelate of belated concubinage with the public peace and of public order.

The Catholic people protested against the unjust treatment of their Bishop. A document, signed by more than 600 persons, who had either been present at the sermon or were reliable witnesses, assured the Government that "there was no abuse of freedom of speech, and that I (the Bishop) said nothing which might be interpreted as a counsel to a hint to do anything against the law of the land or against the public." They also asked that "consideration of the dignity of religion" and in accordance with strict justice, the Government should restore the Bishop to liberty.

The result of this last declaration was that the Government, in order that the President ordered Don Casar de Garro, a Spaniard and proprietor of the printing shop where the document was printed, and well as all who had helped to spread it, among them several ladies of high station, were sent to prison for having expressed a wish to speak with the prelate.

PROTESTANT VIEW.

Rev. James Gratian Mythen, an Episcopal minister, of Christ Episcopal church, Norfolk, Va., has been speaking in favor of Irish freedom, and in discussing the religious phase of the Irish question says:

"The so-called religious issue in Ireland is nothing but a common political trick by which English militarism seeks to justify its rule of might in that country. It aims to sow dissension among a naturally tolerant and amiable people, and to exaggerate that dissension a hundredfold in the eyes of Americans. Yet the masses of Catholic Irishmen have repeatedly followed Protestant leaders like Dean Swift, Henry Grattan, Wolf Tone, Robert Emmet and Charles Stewart Parnell, while on other hand the last election proved that Protestants give equal confidence to Catholic leaders in patriotic matters, as many Sinn Fein candidates who happened to be Catholics were elected by Ulster constituencies with large Protestant populations. The common sense of Americans refuses longer to be confused by this injection of a fictitious religious character into what is purely a fight for national rights such as we went to war to vindicate. In the Western States I was frequently invited to state Ireland's cause from Protestant pulpits."

SAVING NATIONAL HONOR.

The Senate committee's demand that Shantung be restored to China will, if approved by a majority of Senators, do more to make our nation respected the world over than our prowess in the war and the financial strength our nation has developed under the stress of the conflict. Germany's title to Shantung was not as good as her title to Alsace, and yet the latter has been regarded as France's particular spoil of war. Why has China been treated differently? Suppose for a moment that England should claim a rich strip of Brazil as her legitimate prey. Would the United States approve of the demand? Certainly not. Then by what extraordinary process of reasoning can our representatives at the conference justify their approval of the award of Shantung to Japan? Of course we understand that the Shantung matter was already arranged by secret treaty without the knowledge of the United States. That, however, does not mean that our delegates to the peace conference were bound to accept the arrangement. In disapproving of the Shantung award the Senate Committee have taken a long step towards saving the national honor and incidentally doing our country the greatest possible service. The possession of Shantung would enable Japan to exploit China and eventually enable Japan to organize the tremendous manpower of China to further her designs. The opposition of America, power of China to further her designs through the resistance of China to Japanese encroachments and put a check on Japanese designs in other directions. This would be serving America's best interest.

CHURCH AND MEXICO.

Monsignor Kelley, President of the Catholic Church Extension Society, requests the press to state that, in spite of rumors and even newspaper interviews to the effect that President Carranza has or will abate the persecution laws of Mexico against the church, no step has yet been taken to that end. The Constitution of Queretaro is still in force, and the special session of the Mexican Congress, which was to pass a decree for the removal of religious disabilities, has not even considered the matter, nor was it mentioned in the call issued for that Congress. All the favorable indications are summed up in the fact that the Bishops have been permitted to return, but all of them are not yet in their dioceses. The seized religious buildings are still retained by the Government. In Sonora only one priest is permitted for about 5,000 people. The religious question in Mexico is far away from a satisfactory solution at the present time.

CALLED CRISIS.

The punitive expedition into Mexico in pursuit of the bandits who held two American army aviators for ransom has ended. Officers of the expedition say they believe that the bandit chief was killed by American flyers. At any rate the trail was lost, and as there was nothing to be gained by wandering around on Mexican soil the expedition returned. Thus ends another incident that at one time seemed serious enough to be called another crisis in our relations with Carranza. How many more of these will follow no one can say. But some day the real crisis will come.

DUTY OF ALL.

It is the duty of every good citizen to become a booster for the Kentucky State Fair next week, and show appreciation of the hard work done by Commissioner Matt Cohen, Secretary Fount Kremer and the State Fair executives.

THEY HAVE.

When we went into the war and spent billions in order to win, the boast went round that we were proving to the outside world that we are not a nation of worshippers of the "almighty dollar," and so we have been inclined to feel very proud of ourselves as a self-denying people. Just now, however, the profiteers of this country are giving an exhibition of selfish greed that calls for intervention by the power of the Government, lest they stir up serious trouble by continuing to rob the people who are at their mercy. Everybody has to eat and nearly everybody has to pay rent. Which prompts the Catholic Tribune to ask have the people of this so-called democracy the power to peacefully shake off the horde of vampires known as profiteers?

MIGHT START PANIC.

Reports from Washington say that a project of vast proportion to force down prices on the necessities of life and hold them in check pending the restoration of normal price levels is being considered by the administration. The plan is for the Government to establish retail stores throughout the country, purchase food, clothing and other necessities, in immense quantities and retail them to consumers at cost. A step in this direction was taken last week when the War Department announced that on September 25 it would open fourteen retail stores for the sale of surplus army clothing and supplies. It is now proposed to extend this undertaking by having the Government resume wholesale purchase on a large scale, keeping the stores open and continuing to sell at cost to the consumer. This would be to substitute for price regulation direct competition by the Government with retail stores. It is claimed that it would be a remedy for profiteering. The use of the Government as a middleman might be discontinued when the present crisis has passed. It is a very fascinating scheme and it might prove effective in lowering prices somewhat. But what of the retail business to which it might prove a ruinous competitor? asks the True Voice. It would, likely enough, drive thousands of small merchants to ruin and unsettle general business conditions if the plan were undertaken on a large scale. If it were not then its effect on prices would scarcely be felt. We are inclined to think that the Government has about all it can handle at the present time without taking up the retail business. If it is necessary or advantageous the Government can fix prices as it did on some commodities during the war. Better that than unsettling all business conditions and perhaps starting a financial panic by wrecking established business concerns.

DROP WILL COME.

Opinions differ as to whether a drop in prices may be expected soon. Some of those who have studied the situation believe that prices will go even higher before they fall. Perhaps so; but recent indications point to lower levels for food products soon. At any rate, the drop will come sooner or later. Those who calculate that the present scale will continue indefinitely may as well take account of the inevitable return to normal prices and so shape their business affairs as to be ready for it. The reckless speculator is due for disaster.

DRAMATIC APPEAL.

Michael J. Ryan, of Philadelphia, one of the Irish Freedom Commission, made a dramatic appeal to the Senate Committee in Washington last Saturday. Mr. Ryan declared the Irish in this country had rallied to a man to fight for America in the great war and said: "Three of my own household went into the army. One of my own kin is dead at Chateau Thierry. They fought for the rights and desires of the small nationalities. I beg you, Senators, not to break faith with them."

The United States gets much the worst of the allied ruling governing trade with Germany. The adjustment of the customs matter appears to have given the business interest of our allies a chance for another coupe against Americans. Under the latest ruling the United States must pay four times as much on German imports as other nations. Every advantage goes to other hands, and in such a way that the League of Nations will be impotent to prevent the discrimination.

Properly regulated food should be used in measured quantities and then our health would be of the best. Prices would be properly checked and the profiteer would go out of business. Even chronic disease would gradually cease to be, for it is on overfeeding that these ailments thrive.

Washington's advice in reference to foreign entanglements is as good today as when it was uttered and Americans will not regret it in the present crisis in world affairs they took his advice to their hearts and acted accordingly.

Their many friends tender heartfelt sympathy to James and Mary Jefferies, 425 West Bloom street, from whom death claimed their beloved seven-year-old son, Francis J. Jefferies. The funeral was held Saturday morning from Holy Name church, Rev. Father John O'Connor celebrating the requiem high mass.

Andrew F. Kremer, beloved husband of Mary Farrell Kremer, passed from this life at an early hour Tuesday morning, and the sad news was a shock to his many friends. He was sixty-eight years old, and his death is attributed to infirmities due to his advanced age. His funeral was held from St. John's church.

Funeral services over the remains of Miss Mayne Gerwing, a most estimable young woman, were held Monday morning at St. Martin's church, of which she was a devout member. She was twenty-one years old and the daughter of Herman and May Gerwing, 801 South Clay street, to whom many extend their heartfelt sympathy.

Mrs. Eliza Carroll, aged eighty-five, aunt of Miss Mary Rose Kelly and Miss Julia Cunningham, 1045 South Seventh street, passed to her eternal reward Wednesday morning, ending a life filled with devotion to her church and her friends. Her funeral was held yesterday morning with requiem high mass at St. Louis Bertrand's church.

Dr. Coomes was seventy-two years old and had long been recognized as one of the leading physicians of Kentucky. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Fannie P. Coomes, for whom there is felt sincere sympathy.

FAITH DID NOT WAVER.

In a letter to William J. McGinley, Supreme Secretary of the Knights of Columbus, Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes, of New York City, said, "that his faith" in the abilities of that organization during the period of war, and their peace time programme which calls for the establishment of supplementary night schools throughout the country, "had not been disappointed." Archbishop Hayes has been a keen observer of the accomplishments of the Knights of Columbus and is understood to be in full sympathy with their proposed campaign against Bolshevism and other forms of Radicalism. The letter said in part: "Having reviewed the reports of the war work of the order, as well as of its other activities, I am very much pleased. I don't want to be considered one of those in the 'I told you class', but from the beginning I had faith in the Knights of Columbus which never wavered and I have not been disappointed."

FOR LOUVAIN AND LILLE.

On the first or the second Sunday in September in most dioceses a collection will be taken up for the two hard-stricken Catholic Universities of Louvain and Lille. Why should we do all we can to make this collection a striking success? Firstly, because it has been asked of the hierarchy by the Pope himself. Secondly, because it would be unlike America if Cardinal Mercier, who will be with us a fortnight after the collection takes place, were not given this mark of sympathy. Thirdly, because the effort made in certain quarters to "evangelize" Northern France can only be combated by Catholic physicians, professors or lawyers graduated from the two great Catholic universities.

Absolute rejection of the League of Nations is the only thing that can save the United States from enrolment in the warfare of Europe, representatives of the Irish League told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Saturday. Frank P. Walsh, Edward F. Dunne and Michael J. Ryan—the three delegates who went from the United States to present the cause of Ireland at the peace conference—told the committee in burning words that the League of Nations must be rejected by the Senate.

Judge Daniel E. Cohan and Bourke Cockran, of New York, repeated this declaration in tones of solemn warning. Judge Cohan said: "We insist that this League of Nations is not a league for peace, but is simply a cover for an Anglo-American alliance under which the freedom of America would be abridged and the power of the governing classes in England permanently secured." Frank P. Walsh said: "The whole league is subversive of what those who favored a League of Nations intended it to be. The covenant is either a thoroughgoing fraud or it is a structure of ideals. It is not hard to find what is behind the covenant to see how rotten it is, that the ideals we have heard so much about have nothing to do with it. It was stacked in advance because of secret agreements entered into and among those who signed those secret agreements were the representatives of the United States. God help the people of America if a dispute ever arises under Article X of the covenant, and a dispute is going to arise soon over Ireland. Unless the Senate pitches this covenant out of the window it will bring war."

Mr. Ryan told the committee that the Irish people in the United States have never been so united on a public question as they are on the question of the League of Nations, and declared the whole thing should be thrown out. Judge Dunne asserted that if the treaty were ratified the United States would be bound to assist in the enforcement of the kind of military despotism that rules Ireland today. He pleaded for rejection of the entire treaty.

For three solid hours the committee sat in patience listening to the eloquent appeal of the Irish representatives for rejection of the league covenant. The room, in which the hearing was held, was crowded to suffocation. Throughout the delivery of the speeches there was applause as the statements were uttered. The spokesmen for Ireland did not at any time ask the committee to raise its hand in any movement to bring about the freedom of Ireland. They departed entirely from that line of argument and made their case solely upon the ground that the interests of the whole people of the United States require that the treaty should not be accepted. The spokesmen said that they spoke for twenty million persons in America of Irish ancestry, and from the standpoint of these persons, they said, acceptance of the treaty would be dangerous to the continued peace and safety of the Union.

The story of the trip to Paris by the three American representatives was related in detail, as well as the trip they made to Ireland to investigate at first hand the reports of British cruelties against the native population. Most of the story was told in humorous vein and without bitterness. Mr. Walsh was severe in his arraignment of the peace conference, which he characterized as a farce. At no time, he said, did the American delegates to the conference have anything to say about the important matter disposed of. They were as so many dummy directors in the hands of the British and French delegates, he said.

Mr. Walsh made mention for the first time since the return of the delegates to this country of a secret interview they had while in Paris with President Wilson. At this interview the President is reported to have asserted that the Irish people were entitled to self determination. When Mr. Walsh mentioned this interview he said he would not disclose it to the committee except in executive session for the reason that it might prove embarrassing to the President; he offered to give it to the committee in confidence.

Senator Johnson, of California, promptly entered a vigorous objection to this proceeding, asserting that under the principle of "open covenants openly arrived at" the committee could not accept the document in confidence. The committee thereupon directed Mr. Walsh to submit the document for the record. There was some applause when this order was made. Another interesting point was developed by Mr. Ryan when he informed the committee that when the committee requested an interview in Paris with the President they were referred to Col. House. He said Col. House treated them with extreme courtesy in the efforts they made to have their passports altered so they could go to Ireland. Col. House also arranged an interview for them with Lloyd George, but on the day set for the interview Lloyd George was unable to attend.

Mr. Ryan told how the League of Nations covenant was adopted in the conference. He said that after it was read by President Wilson there was a brief statement by the Japanese delegation regarding the principle of social equality and one by a representative of Belgium, expressing the regret that Brussels had not been chosen as the seat of the League of Nations; other delegates all over the room were attempting to obtain recognition, Mr. Ryan said, but Premier Clemenceau waved them all aside and refused to recognize them. Then, according to Mr. Ryan, Clemenceau said there was no objection to the covenant and it was declared adopted without a roll call or vote of any kind.

"Was there any difference between the way the steam roller worked over there and the way it is working here?" inquired Senator Borah. "Not at all," responded Mr. Ryan, "and we who had observed the steam roller in action in Chicago, Kansas City and other places were surprised and rather admired the smoothness with which it worked."

During Mr. Walsh's statement, Senator Borah inquired if there was not some influence at work to prevent the American delegates from obtaining a hearing on behalf of Ireland.

"Yes, we were prevented by the representatives of George V.," replied Mr. Walsh.

Judge Cohan made the opening statement to the committee saying: "Speaking on behalf of the great bulk of American citizens of Irish blood, who number more than 20,000,000 of our population, we are opposed to the proposed League of Nations for many reasons, all of which we believe vitally affect the interests of our country. We are opposed to the creation of any super state or combination of nations that will interfere with the independence or with the sovereignty of the United States; that would give over to any power or combination of powers any of the rights for which our forefathers struggled, and which are part of the heritage of a free and independent people. We believe that it is intolerable to self-respecting upstanding Americans to ask us to enter into any agreement under which any power, no matter how friendly it may claim to be, shall have six votes to our one, or under which the power to declare war or to control either directly or indirectly our armies and navies shall be placed in the hands of a group of foreigners, or men outside of the regularly constituted authorities of our own nation. We entered the war to end autocracy of all kinds and we are asked to emerge from it by subscribing to a so-called League of Nations that would give over to England the absolute mastery of the seas and make her a world power unequalled in the history of the world in population, in territory and in dominion. We ask for the extension of liberty, not of autocracy, and we urge that no League of Nations which so vitally affects the sovereignty of America and which leaves the people of Ireland in the possession of the governing class of England, can be right or can make for a just and permanent peace. We insist that this is in no sense a League of Nations but is simply a cover for an Anglo-American alliance under which the freedom of America would be abridged and the power of the governing classes in England permanently secured."

Bourke Cockran's speech to the committee was frequently interrupted by applause and at its conclusion Senators crowded about him to congratulate him upon what they characterized as one of the most powerful arguments against the League of Nations heard since the fight started. Mr. Cockran arraigned the peace treaty and the League of Nations as the most dangerous proposals ever made to the American people. In his argument against the League of Nations he said in part: "We are here to protest against any treaty or League of Nations that would remove the cause of the Irish people from the conscience of the people. Our only hope is in the influence of the American republic on an Irishman by birth, as well as by blood, and the reason I am here is because I do not want to see the country to which I came help destroy the principles of right and justice and liberty as applied to the Irish race. There can be no peace throughout the world until the Irish question is disposed of. One great difficulty in dealing with the Irish question is to understand just what it is. What is it that causes this unrest in Ireland? We are told that the purpose is the purpose of an impoverished, thriftless, lazy race to impose its will upon a prosperous but helpless minority. They say this because Ulster, which opposes home rule, is prosperous and wealthy, while the rest of Ireland is poor. But if the conditions of the rest of Ireland is the result of law and of British tyranny, then we can see a different light on the situation. If it is shown that the unrest is the result of British rule, then English rule must be exterminated or the Irish people must die. You would not suffer a race like this to be destroyed; then if you would not suffer it to be destroyed, you must insist that it be freed. The fundamental impossibility of England doing justice to Ireland has been shown. When she tries to do it there are forces in England too strong to permit justice to be done. Ireland must be relieved of this incubus. She can not exist under those conditions. She won't. I do not believe all the power on earth arrayed under this League of Nations can keep her submissive under this wrong. And the same can be said of America. She will never remain submissive under a great wrong. If you follow the path laid down by this League of Nations—this league which is not a league for peace, but a league to prohibit peace—then I can see no hope for the human family."

SANCTION REFUSED.

The campaign undertaken by the National War Council against the exhibition of moving picture films, which violate every rule of decency, has apparently been effective. The Federal Public Health Service has announced through the press that it will not hereafter sanction or give approval to any film involving the sex appeal under the guise of promoting "social health."

DOWN AS TRUE.

Germany was winning that war till the Yanks got over. Europe has admitted that and history will set it down as true. The American support turned the tide. We all remember Chateau-Thierry. We will always remember it here in America as we remember Lexington and the Alamo. When Gen. Haig says it is only the clap trap of a British egotist.

THIRD FIELD MASS.

A field mass will be celebrated Sunday morning, September 14, at 10 o'clock at Glenwood Park, which will be a part of the soldiers' and sailors' welcome celebration to take place in New Albany, September 14 to 17. This was announced at the services Sunday morning at Holy Trinity and St. Mary's churches, of New Albany; St. Mary's at Navilleton, and St. Mary's-of-the-Knobs. The mass will be celebrated in thanksgiving for the return home of the boys from Floyd county who served in the world's war. An altar will be erected in the southeast part of the athletic field in Glenwood Park, where the structure will have a natural background, consisting of trees, and will be protected from the sun. The mass will be given under the auspices of St. Mary's and Holy Trinity churches jointly. The choir of the two churches will furnish the music, while boys from the congregations will serve at the mass. Provision will be made for the comfort of the older men and women of the respective congregations, 500 chairs to be placed for their convenience. This week invitations were sent to the churches and organizations of the cities and towns surrounding New Albany to have their members attend the mass. It is expected that several thousand persons will be present at the service, which will be the first of the kind to take place in that part of the State. The celebration of the mass will be one of the chief attractions of the welcome. A field mass is an unusual service, and only two others have been celebrated in the State of Indiana, one at Indianapolis and the other one at Evansville. There were 252 Catholic boys from Floyd county in the service, a large number of them taking part in some of the important engagements in France. In addition this county furnished five K. of C. secretaries, one K. of C. chaplain, and two members of the church served as Red Cross nurses. Two boys were killed on the field of battle, one of the secretaries died of disease while in the service, and also the chaplain. The two boys killed in action were Herman Bauer and Victor J. Reilly. The K. of C. chaplain who died was the Rev. Father Justin Butler, of Mt. St. Francis College, and the K. of C. secretary was G. Edgar Gregoire.

SERVICE MEN ONLY ATTEND.

A class of nineteen fully qualified chauffeurs graduated from the K. of C. technical school for service men at Camp Dix early last week. They are some of the 300 men, including Major Gen. Hale, in command of the camp, who have learned, through the K. of C., many useful things they would not have known if they had quit the army when their discharges could have been obtained without taking advantage of the technical courses offered by the Knights.

In Camps Devens, Dix and Upton the Knights are now operating schools that rank with some of the best business and technical institutions in the civilian field. None but service men attend these schools. Of course in the schools operated in K. of C. extra camp buildings, such as the large K. of C. home on Berkely street in Boston, numerous discharged men are pupils. At all the camps above named the Knights have expert tutors, whose work has been designed by one of New England's leading educators—Michael J. Downey, of the Massachusetts State Board of Education and Director of the Boston evening schools.

At Kelly Field, Texas, the Knights have for months been operating what is probably the only camp law school to give diplomas.

Two hundred and fifty men have been graduated from this school, seventy-five of them officers.

Prof. G. M. Hayes, of New York, supervises the educational work of the Knights in the Eastern camps. Beginning with one or two courses, such as typewriting and business English, the Knights have extended their camp curricula so that now they include several wage earning trades, the most popular of which is automobile mechanics.

"In the K. of C. schools," says Daniel J. Sullivan, of Boston, the man who had the first vision of what could be done in an educational reconstruction way for the men in the camps, "our aim has always been to give the service man a new weapon to go out and fight his way up in the world. As far back as the spring of 1918 we planned our school system. There were many difficulties in the way of putting it through, but the boys have shown a desire to go to school on this side under the same auspices through which they received comforts and consolation on the other side.

Concerning the hats which are promised for next month there seems to be a golden mean struck between the diminutive hat of late autumn and the large and drooping hat of early summer. Indeed we are beginning to see what might be called the large small hat.

For smartness there is nothing smarter than a straw hat. It just isn't outdone by anything living at the present in the millinery world. Sometimes the trimming rises abruptly in the back, or again you see it slanting down at one side or the other. And if it is made up in a small hat, which is close to the head, there is a chic look to it that a Frenchwoman would first admire and then imitate.

A HERO AFTER ALL.

When Dad was well and going strong, And never had a holiday. The bills were settled right along— He always seemed to find a way. He kicked because my shoes were out s— And at the price of sister's hat; But Dad's a pretty good old scout. I guess we'll all agree to that.

Sometimes when we would have to wait And dinner would be getting cold, Ma scolded Dad for being late, 'N' I'll tell the world that Ma can scold.

I guess she often thought he lied When he was trying to explain; One night last week he nearly died, But now they say he's on the gain.

He's been in bed a month or two And, gee, the stack of bills we've got! It's lucky that he's pullin' through, Because we need him here a lot. Ma used to say he had no right To be a fool like other men; She always worried when he'd light Another stogie, now and then.

I heard her last night, when she spoke To Doctor Griggs concernin' Dad; She said he seemed to want to smoke, And that's a sign that made her glad.

Sis nurses him and strokes his head, And we have all been findin' out, Since 'Dad's been sick and nearly dead, That he's a pretty good old scout. S. E. Kiser.

GONE TO REST.

Edward Fitzpatrick, for many years one of the most widely known newspaper men in the Falls Cities and a frequent contributor to the columns of the Kentucky Irish American, died Saturday afternoon at his home in New Albany, following an illness of over a year. Mr. Fitzpatrick was sixty-one years old and was born in Corning, N. Y. In early childhood he moved with his parents to Jeffersonville, where he grew to manhood. He was a newspaper man by nature, always reliable and just, and therefore enjoyed a wide acquaintance and respect among public men of both Kentucky and Indiana. More than thirty years ago Mr. Fitzpatrick was married to Miss Helen Doherty, New Albany, and he had lived in that city from the time of his marriage. His wife survives him. He also is survived by a brother, Joseph Fitzpatrick, and a sister, Mrs. A. R. Doble, both of Jeffersonville. Mr. Fitzpatrick was a member of Holy Trinity church in New Albany. He also was a member of the American-Irish Historical Society, for which he wrote much on the history of the Irish pioneers of the Northwest. His funeral took place Monday morning. Rev. Father Curran conducting the solemn obsequies.

STARTS RETAIL STORE.

Much interest has been aroused by the announcement that the Government will soon open to place before the public, at the least rate possible, the surplus supplies of the army. As the idea and object of this sale is to reach the individual, no orders for large quantities of any article will be received, except for Boy Scouts and in special cases municipal activities. No surplus will be made to hotels and similar institutions. At present no groceries will be included in these articles. The exact location of the various stores that will be established in this district and detail plans as to the method and manner of distribution will be published in all papers as soon as determined upon. These stores will not open before September 25. The Jeffersonville district includes all of Kentucky and that part of Indiana south of a line drawn through Indianapolis, running east and west. Indianapolis is in the Jeffersonville district.

PRaises PALMER.

Cardinal Gibbons in an interview in Philadelphia strongly condemned profiteering. The Cardinal, who was on his way to Baltimore from Springfield Lake, where he spent two weeks, visited Archbishop Dougherty at the Cathedral for a few hours. "I would like speak in commendation of Attorney General Palmer and the administration in the work of curbing the profiteers," said the Cardinal. "It is necessary that the high cost of living be reduced, especially when it is shown that one of the reasons for it is that certain persons are obtaining excess profits at the expense of the consumer. Profiteering can be justified by nothing, and it should be stopped immediately by as drastic measures as are at the command of the Government."

FIRST AMERICAN SAINT.

Saturday was celebrated the Feast of St. Rose of Lima. This beautiful saint was born of Christian parents in Lima, South America. From earliest infancy she gave clear signs of future holiness, and at the age of five years she made the vow of perpetual virginity. She was much given to prayer and fasted rigorously. Having taken the habit of the Third Order of Dominic, she redoubled her austerities. She was even privileged to hear these words from our Lord Himself: "Rose of my heart, be thou my bride." At last she was happily introduced into the paradise of this her spouse, and being famous for miracles both before and after her death, Pope Clement X. solemnly enrolled her among the holy virgins of the church.

ANNIVERSARY MEETING.

St. Mary's of the Woods day was observed by the Sarto Literary Club of New Albany, at its anniversary meeting, which was held at Glenwood Park Tuesday. A banquet was a feature of the event and the speakers talked on topics relating to St. Mary's of the Woods. Mrs. James L. Russell, President of the club, presided as toastmistress and the speakers were Misses Agatha Schaefer, Genevieve Vernia, Mary Egan and Emily Lyons. Mrs. W. J. Revere and Mrs. S. J. Gardner.

THIS YEAR'S STATE FAIR.

One does not need to be an inspired prophet to predict that a new record State Fair history will be staged in Louisville in the week beginning next Monday. The farmers of Kentucky are not only prosperous, but they share the mental relief all classes of the people have derived from the return of peace, and they are therefore in a mood to take advantage of the mingled study and recreation the State Fair affords.

Commissioner of Agriculture Matt Cohen, State Fair Secretary Fount Kremer and the executive staff report nothing but cheering indications as the date of the opening of the exposition approaches. Exhibitors have applied for space in unprecedented numbers, and this in itself presages the most successful fair up to date on the educational side.

The live stock display will be a wonder and the array of farm products will keep pace with it. The farm tractor demonstrations will rank high among the exhibitional features.

While the fair of 1919 will surpass all its predecessors from the serious viewpoint of utility or as a great educational agency and as a stimulus to increased food production, its recreation features will be enlarged and diversified so as to meet its dual requirements. Now that city people are taking more than their former interest in the vital questions of food production, the time is propitious for them to cultivate an acquaintance with the State Fair, the most effective propaganda for agriculturists maintained by the State government. It is their fair as well as the farmers' fair, and they should recognize that fact by patronizing it in large numbers.

SEPTEMBER INTENTION.

His Holiness Pope Benedict XV. has recommended "Catholic Teachers" to the Apostleship of Prayer as the general intention for the month of September. The Holy Father realizes the paramount importance of religious training for the young, in order that they may develop into Christian men and women, with a practical knowledge of their relations to God and neighbor; with habits of virtue acquired through the pious exercises of Catholic schools; and with the ability to hold their own, as Catholic citizens, in progressive public movements and upon the social questions of their communities. Disrespect for constituted authority, disobedience of law, disregard for personal rights are widely prevalent and are threatening the very life of organized society. Radical Socialists and anarchists of every description are audaciously striving to put their vagaries into practice, and profiteers are exploiting the people beyond the limit of tolerance. He would be a bold man, who would venture to predict the outcome. This condition is the result of false education, of education based upon materialism, and regardless of God, religion and the eternal law. Next to God we must depend upon Catholic teachers to supply this remedy. Therefore the Holy Father appeals to the faithful to make "Catholic Teachers" the object of their prayers during the coming month. Vocations in the teaching brotherhoods and sisterhoods are greatly needed to meet the growing demands of our schools; and we should earnestly pray that God may inspire zealous men and women with a determination to devote their lives to the holy calling of Catholic education.

CALLS ON LABOR.

Calling on American labor to aid the cause of Irish freedom, and urging closer co-operation between workers of various nations as the only means of defeating the "privileged class" in its efforts "to keep the masses of one nation at the throats of the masses of another," Ramon de Valera, President of the Irish Republic, addressed the New York Central Federated Union at a labor day meeting Monday.

ATTENDANCE INCREASED.

Reports from the forty parochial schools of this city, the five academies and college show an increased attendance for the term 1919-20, the number exceeding 10,000. This argues well for our coming citizenship, in whom will be instilled a real love of God and country. The teachers are from various orders, Xaverian Brothers, Brothers of Mary, Franciscan Brothers, Sisters of Charity of Nazareth, Loreto Sisters, Ursuline Sisters and Sisters of Mercy.

Miss Donoghoe's guests were Misses Gladys Barr, Rose Kolb, Ethel Angermeyer, Evelyn Odum, Pearl Belle Odum, Lucile Donoghoe.

COLONELS VS. BLUES.

Joe Cantillon's Minneapolis club will play its last game of the season here this afternoon and John Gangel's Kansas City Blues will be here tomorrow for a series of three games. Manager Joe McCarthy and his Colonels will try awful hard to take the entire series for the three defeats sustained at Kansas City two weeks ago. Both clubs are fighting hard with Indianapolis for second position and in addition there is bad blood existing between the players because of the numerous run-ins between the players all season. Say what you will, this fighting spirit brings out the fans, and while none approve of rowdiness on the diamond the public would rather see a game with spirit than a listless game with no action. Following Kansas City Rowland's tailenders, the Milwaukee club, will make its farewell appearance in a series of three games.

HIBERNIANS.

What They Have Been Doing the Past Week—General News Notes.

Michael Doyle is recovering speedily from his recent injury.

The Hibernian ball team plays Mackin Council tomorrow afternoon.

Social success is marking all the events of the Ladies' Auxiliary at Seattle.

A monster joint initiation took place last Sunday afternoon in San Francisco.

Division 3 met last evening and heard reports from the moonlight excursion committee.

There were over 200 delegates in attendance at the Indiana State convention at Fort Wayne.

Counties east of the mountain division sent complete delegations to the Washington State convention.

The Hibernian Social Club had a good attendance on the moonlight excursion despite the street car strike.

Col. P. H. Callahan and Tom Walsh will report on the proposed De Valera lecture next Monday evening at Division 4.

Tacoma Hibernians left nothing undone to make the stay of delegates and visitors to the State convention one of pleasure and profit.

Indianapolis and Marion county sent forty-one delegates to the Indiana Ladies' Auxiliary convention. There are ten divisions in Marion county.

South Bend Hibernians are perfecting arrangements for the reception of Eamon De Valera, President of the Irish Republic, who is expected to visit that city in the near future.

The Irish National Library Foundation to be established by the Ancient Order will be located at Notre Dame University, which will thus become the custodian of everything that pertains to Irish achievement.

Division 5, of San Francisco, got away to a flying start over eight other Divisions, with eighty-six new applications taken up at its annual ball. Eleven members of the United States Navy from Mare Island and six American soldiers from the Presidio were among the applicants registered.

The San Francisco ranks of the Ancient Order are swelling into thousands of new members as a result of the membership drive being conducted by the big organization. In every section of the city men of Irish birth and ancestry are showing a lively interest in the order, due largely to the great tribute it received from President De Valera for the effective aid rendered by the Hibernians to the cause of the Irish republic.

AWFUL FOOD WASTE.

The report of the City Health

Department for the fiscal year ending August 31 shows that since September, 1918, the department destroyed as unfit for human consumption 167 tons of vegetables, thirteen tons of meats and six tons of fruits. This criminal waste of foodstuffs is entirely due to profiteering and cold storage, which call for the enactment of stringent laws and a limit to storage.

TWIN CITY END.

The Twin City Baseball League closes its season tomorrow afternoon with a card that will prove of interest to many, as there will be a game between Mackin and Hibernians, the two leading pennant contenders. The Knights of Columbus will meet the Alumni and Shawnee will play California.

This has been an unusually successful season for the Twin City, the interest all year being kept alive with the closest pennant race in the history of the league. The attendance at the games at Shawnee Park has been extra large and the field day this year was also a record breaker.

A nice sum has been left in the treasury and all indications point to an auspicious start next season and a possible roster of eight clubs.

The standing to date:

	Won	Lost	Pct
Mackin Council.....	10	3	.933
Hibernians.....	10	3	.750
X. Alumni.....	7	5	.581
Knights of Columbus.....	6	7	.500

COLORED PEOPLE BEWARE.

Two weeks ago it was mentioned in the daily press that Patrolman Holzknecht had gone on a rampage uptown and had the colored residents of the alleys giving an imitation of "how you see me and now you don't" to dodge the fast flying bullets. Col. Pettit's office said that they knew nothing of the case and still must be in the dark, as the officer is out in full uniform patrolling his beat as of old. During the week the Louisville Herald photographer was busy taking snap shots of the Keystone police in action trying to impress the public, while nothing was said of the few real police who were finally summoned to cover up the mistakes of the Keystone who messed it up when they were riding on the cars.

ALUMNAE APPROVAL.

The International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, representing over 50,000 Catholic women graduates from convent schools and colleges, have sent to William J. Mulligan, Chairman of the Knights of Columbus War Activities, a set of beautifully inscribed resolutions adopted at the recent meeting of the Federation approving the accomplishments of the order during the war signed by Mary Blake Finan and Mrs. E. J. Kennedy. The officers of the Federation are Cardinal Gibbons, Honorary President; Right Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, Director, and the Very Rev. Edward A. Peace, Assistant Director.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

Late News That Will Interest Members Here and Elsewhere.

About 125 men met at Jefferson, Iowa, to make application for a charter for a council there.

Cuero, Texas, last week came to the front, conferring the three degrees upon twenty-eight candidates.

The Right Rev. Bishop Cantwell was the principal speaker at a recent meeting of the Knights in Los Angeles.

The second and third degrees were conferred on a large class at San Francisco, the third in charge of the State degree team.

Hon. Thomas B. Slatery, of Covington, United States District Attorney, addressed last week's meeting of Price Hill Council, Cincinnati, speaking on the League of Nations.

Cincinnati Chapter will hold its Columbus day celebration on Monday, October 13. It will take the form of a banquet at the Hotel Gibson, and an endeavor will be made to secure the presence of Cardinal Mercier.

The Mayor of Binghamton declared a holiday there when Dr. Marcel Knecht, of the French High Commission, pinned the Croix de Guerre on Joseph Patrick Crowe, a Knights of Columbus secretary, who was wounded in action before St. Juvin, in the Argonne Forest, while working with the Eighty-second Division.

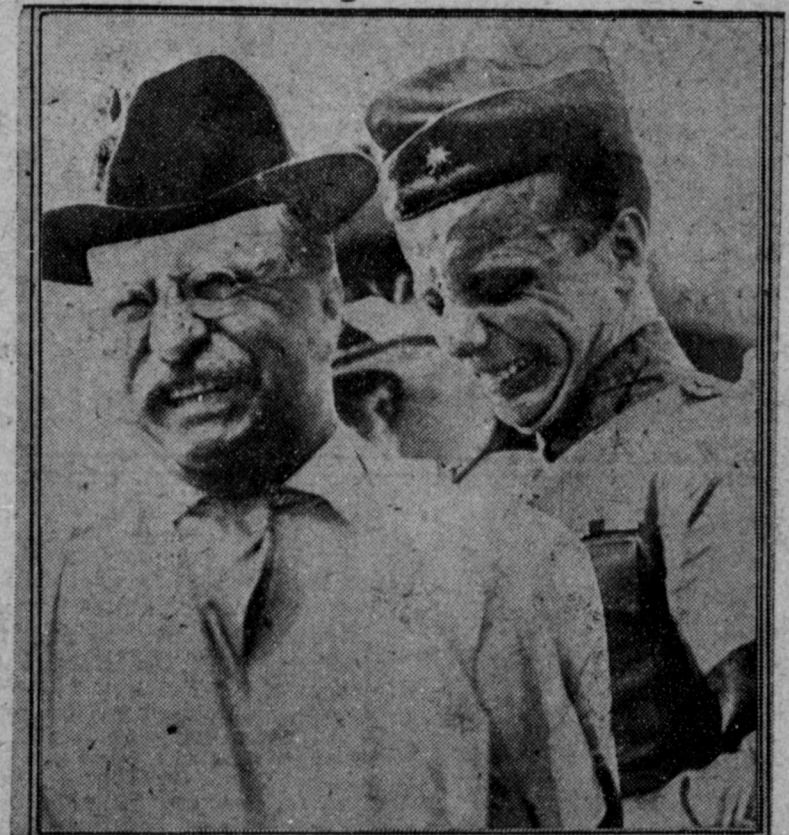

AIRPLANE EXCURSION.

The Eleventh excursion of the Airplane Oil and Development Company was attended by many prospective buyers.

F. L. (Old Man) Harris in full charge of the excursion party leaves nothing unturned in seeing that the guests are well cared for as to Pullman service, refreshments, plenty of good smokes and table de hote meals. Mr. Harris says he will run another excursion tomorrow and claims he wants the public to see what they are getting before they buy stock in the Airplane Oil and Development Company. He says he has something; if they can see for themselves they don't hesitate to buy.

CARSON IN ULSTER.

From Belfast the Associated Press sends word that Sir Edward Carson, leader of Ulster Unionists, who has come to Belfast to open a new anti-home rule campaign, addressing the Ulster Unionists council Tuesday, declared that so far as Ireland was concerned colonial home rule was the same thing as the Sinn Fein and that in this respect the Sinn Fein was perfectly logical, because in reality there was nothing between union and separation.

THE FAMOUS ROOSEVELT SMILE.

Teddy, Sr., and Teddy, Jr., photographed smiling as only a Roosevelt can smile. It is the smile which did so much to win the late Colonel the millions of friends which he made during his strenuous lifetime. This is the same smile which is making the Lieutenant Colonel popular and well liked by every one who comes in contact with him.

LET PEOPLE ACT.

Interviewed on the tangle over woman suffrage just before the meeting of the Democratic State convention Col. Harry Sommers said that he favored submission of a State amendment. If he were to have his way, he said, the coming Kentucky Legislature would vote to submit the proposition to voters in the next election, and then, if the people by their votes indicated that they favored suffrage for women in all matters, the following Legislature could ratify the Federal amendment plan. He does not believe that the coming Legislature should take the matter out of the hands of the people, and in this the great majority will agree with him.

MET HIS SON.

CHILD HUNGER.

According to the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor, from three to six million American children are not getting enough to eat. More than one-fifth of the school children of New York City are undernourished and the percentage for the country is even higher. In many instances on account of prohibitive prices parents can not give children suitable food. Malnutrition and malnourishment are technical terms employed by Government investigators, that merely mean that a great many of our children do not get sufficient food. Yet the war left our crops ravaged, and according to Gen. Macdonald's statement before a Congressional Committee, there was food in plenty allowed to rot in warehouses. There is a Pan-American Association to conserve child-life in Latin American countries. Surely our own little ones merit the attention of some active association.
